

Introduction to Road Safety Audit

Course Overview

A three-day course designed to give a comprehensive introduction to road safety auditing. Delegates will undertake a number of audits in small groups and receive feedback on the issues raised. After attending, delegates should be able to undertake Road Safety Audits more objectively and confidently.

This course is aimed at professionals who are expected to carry out audits, those who commission audits, at designers whose work is audited and at those who manage the road safety audit process.

Aims and Objectives

The course gives delegates a sound background to road safety audits and advice on safety issues related to a number of highway features. The course provides hands-on experience of carrying out road safety audits of a number of different scheme types and encourage delegates to share their experiences of road safety and highway design.

The aim of the course is to give delegates an introduction to the principles of road safety audit and to illustrate and discuss common problems that may affect highway safety. It will also inform and encourage colleagues to support casualty reduction activities in their day to day roles.
